PRESIDENT'S RECOMMENDED FY 2019
ANNUAL OPERATING BUDGET

Regent Anderson invited President Kaler and Senior Vice President Burnett to present for action the president's recommended FY 2019 annual operating budget (operating budget), as detailed in the docket.

A motion to recommend approval of the president's recommended FY 2019 annual operating budget was made and seconded.

Kaler reminded the committee of his budget priorities, noting that no significant changes were Kaler clarified that that 43 percent of Twin Cities students graduate with no debt. Of those with debt, he reported that the average is $25,000. The cost of attendance is roughly $28,000 per year.

Regent Rosha noted that the current budget structure keeps tuition revenue with the campuses that collect it, and asked for clarification on how the system campuses would be protected from a decrease in tuition revenue. Burnett responded that if the amendment were adopted, centrally available funds might be able to fill the gap. Or, funds would need to be reallocated from the Twin Cities campus to the other campuses.

Student Representative Preston offered his view that there is a point when the debt load on a student becomes unsustainable and graduates are unable to achieve their full potential given their debt burden. He suggested that any reduction be for both resident and non-resident, non-reciprocity (NRNR) students.

Simonson emphasized to Burnett his belief that the administration could find slightly over $9 million in savings out of a $4 billion operating budget.

Regent Hsu reminded the committee of the significant subsidy allocated to the Law School, noting that if the operating budget is passed, the 10-year cost to subsidize the Law School will be close to $100 million. He stated his view that there is plenty of funding available centrally to fund the tuition reduction given other allocations made from the central reserves budget.

Rosha offered his support for the Simonson amendment, stating that a one-percent reduction will move resident tuition rates closer to where the University had been historically. He expressed disappointment in the modeling provided for the other tuition rate options, and noted that the justification in the modeling for a potential resident tuition freeze is unconvincing. Rosha reported seeing tuition and administrative costs grow dramatically over a number of years and suggested looking back further than the current trends. He called the argument that $9 million will be difficult to find flawed, given recent experience with changes in Twin Cities Athletics staffing.

Regent Beeson reiterated his belief that the University has held the cost curve down with a one percent average resident tuition increase during Kaler's administration. He noted that the actual spend rate for the University is 1.8 percent, suggesting that is lower than the actual tuition rate. He again advocated for increased state support and bold investment in strategic initiatives.

Regent Omari commented that this is a difficult conversation given his desire to sacrifice neither quality nor access, and the burden that places on students. He offered his support for the two percent salary pool increase for employees, and clarified to those who submitted public allocation from central reserves already, and given the performance of the University's investments, more could be allocated.

Student Representative Anderson observed that for many students, an undergraduate degree is not the only degree needed for their careers. She proposed that with the cost of graduate education, even $26,000 in undergraduate debt is burdensome. She acknowledged that cost and quality are difficult to balance.

Regent Sviggum expressed that he supported the concept of Simonson's amendment, but is unclear where the necessary funding will be allocated from to cover the decrease in resident tuition. He proposed looking at this option in next year's budget to give time to come up with a complete plan.

Simonson expressed his interest in discussing the various statistics being cited by members of the committee. He emphasized that in his view, the cost of higher education is increasing faster than the growth of wages for degree holders.

The committee voted 3-9 and the Simonson amendment failed. Regents Hsu, Rosha, and Simonson voted in favor of the amendment.

Regent Powell moved to amend the resident undergraduate tuition rate for the Twin Cities campus from two percent to one percent. The motion was seconded.

Powell spoke to his amendment by noting that the personal consumption index rate of inflation is at 1.8 percent. He offered his concern that a resident tuition increase above the inflation rate will put the resident tuition rate at an unstable amount in four years. He noted that funding for the difference in the rate could be found from increased enrollment, continued focus on cost management, and increased support from the University's growing endowment.

Regent McMillan stated that while he agrees with Powell that a two-percent increase is unsustainable over the long term, he supports it right now. He shared the view of other committee members that this year's budget process is the best it has been.

Omari agreed that the University should pay close attention to the sustainability of any tuition increase. He added that tuition sustainability should be looked at with both resident and NRNR tuition.

Beeson agreed that the University needs to discuss what the rate of tuition increase should be. He reiterated his view that without investment, the Board will commit the University not to growth, but to the status quo.

Rosha noted the shift from admitting any Minnesota student with a high school diploma to striving to be among the top-ranked schools, sharing that he is trying to reconcile that with the duty to educate the people of the state. He offered his support for the Powell amendment. He noted that the Board and administration are in the process of defining a systemwide strategic plan that will guide future budget discussions and tuition rate philosophy. He offered the University of Wisconsin as one peer institution th

On a show of hands, the committee voted 4-8 and the Powell amendment failed. Regents Hsu, Powell, Roshia, and Simonson voted in favor of the amendment.

Sviggum moved to amend the operating budget by adding a requirement for employment positions funded with operations and maintenance (O&M) funding, as follows:

To ensure that an expansion of the O&M position pool is justified, units wishing to

Hsu expressed his concern with the level of subsidy for the Law School, that the Law School student body is only one-third Minnesota residents, and that it should be producing more into the schematic design phase. Sviggum asked about concerns regarding design. Berthelsen responded that he is aware of those concerns and encouraged those with concerns to contact him. He added that there are still more conversations to have about the design and assured the committee that the historic exterior will not be changed. Burnett noted that while the design will seek significant input, no design will meet all of the desires expressed.

Regent McMillan encouraged examination of the allocation formula used to distribute Higher Education Asset Preservation and Replacement (HEAPR) in the context of the Systemwide Strategic Plan. He asked how the allocation formula is updated and implemented. Berthelsen responded that the HEAPR formula has been updated to reflect more variables and balance square feet and facility condition. He explained how HEAPR funding has at times been reallocated from the Twin Cities campus if a system campus was short of funding for a high-priority project given the results of the formula. Kaler pointed out the Romano Gym on the Duluth campus as an example of a project assembling a variety of funding sources.

Regent Hsu added his thanks to the legislature and governor. He asked for information on next steps for the Glensheen matching funding and how complaints heard at the recent budget forum in Duluth regarding HVAC issues will be addressed.

project management fees are on average 1.3 percent of the total project, as compared to fees that range from 2.5-3.5 percent in the private sector.

Regent Johnson pointed out the levels of requirements and bureaucracy that go into a University construction project. He suggested that the committee should continue to examine the capital project process and look for ways to streamline it.

In response to a question from Regent Powell, Berthelsen explained that the University has a master plan for managing space, including the integrated energy system and master energy plan. He noted that the University's financial structure creates incentives for units to manage their spaces, but that more needs to be done on space utilization.

Regent Lucas expressed her concern for neighborhoods around the Twin Cities campus and the quality of current construction. She wondered what the areas near the Twin Cities campus will look like in 20 years given what, in her view, appears to be low-quality construction by private developers.

Regent Omari stated that the University bureaucracy is hurting small businesses and their ability to interact with the University for projects like this. He noted the impact a University project could have on a small business and encouraged the Board to revisit this discussion.

INTERNAL AUDIT UPDATE

Regent Cohen invited Chief Auditor Klatt to present the Internal Audit Update, as detailed in the docket.

Klatt reported that since the last update in February 2018, University departments implemented 43 percent of the outstanding recommendations rated as “essential,” exceeding the expected implementation rate of 40 percent. Six units fully implemented all remaining “essential” recommendations. Six audit reports containing 22 recommendations rated as “essential” were issued in the last four months.

Regent Hsu inquired about the process audit for tracking employee Family Medical and Leave Act (FMLA) leave. Klatt reported that the University’s HR system, PeopleSoft, is adequate for tracking employee leaves, although leaves are not consistently recorded. She added that there is opportunity to use PeopleSoft more, but that Human Resources is not in agreement with the recommendation.

In response to a question from Hsu, Klatt explained that it is not possible to quantify the dollar amount that could be saved if the University took advantage of more GSA contracts. She shared that Internal Audit saved 40 percent on a software system purchase by utilizing a GSA contract.

Hanson reminded the committee of its discussion in October 2017 on the same topic and reported that the temporary Systemwide Enrollment Planning Taskforce will become a permanent Systemwide Enrollment Council. McMaster and Keinath reported on the progress of the taskforce. Keinath explained that the group is developing a six-year rolling enrollment plan

SUPPORTING STUDENTS IN GATEWAY COURSES

Regent Omari invited Robert McMaster, Vice Provost and Dean of Undergraduate Education, UMTC; LeeAnn Melin, Associate Vice Provost for Student Success, UMTC; and Andrea Schokker, Interim Dean, Swenson College of Science & Engineering, UMD, to discuss supporting students in gateway courses, as detailed in the docket.

McMaster provided a definition of gateway courses and explained that they typically fulfill liberal education requirements and serve as prerequisites for advanced coursework. He summarized data for courses on the Twin Cities campus with the highest rates of D and F grades and withdrawals (DFW). Melin provided an overview of efforts to increase student success in gateway courses, including comprehensive placement testing, midterm alerts, and SMART Learning Commons. Schokker shared related examples from the Duluth campus, including the Learning Commons, Securian Math Learning Lab and summer math bridge programs.

Regent McMillan inquired about the cost of additional services to support students in gateway courses. Schokker confirmed that these efforts require additional resources, noting the shift nature of outreach activities makes it nearly impossible to aggregate. He praised the presenters for their work in aligning the University's outreach mission with the needs of the state.

Regent Simonson thanked the presenters for their work in addressing the needs of the state, namely the response to opioid addiction.

Regent Hsu urged the presenters to leverage Athletics to reach Minnesotans, noting that it is an important doorway for many people into the University.

Governance & Policy Committee
June 8, 2018

A meeting of the Governance & Policy Committee of the Board of Regents was held on Friday, June 8, 2018 at 7:45 a.m. in the Boardroom, 600 McNamara Alumni Center.

Regents present: Darrin Rosha, presiding; Richard Beeson, Thomas Anderson, Linda Cohen, Michael Hsu, Dean Johnson, Peggy Lucas, David McMillan, Kendall Powell, Randy Simonson, and Steve Sviggu/.

Steeves reported that 13 Board policies were reviewed in the past year. He detailed the status of each policy, noting that four from the current year will continue on the upcoming plan. He outlined the work plan for the 2018-19 fiscal year and the process for the 19 policies slated for comprehensive review.

Rosha applauded the effectiveness of the policy review process, and requested that it remain flexible to allow room for unplanned policy reviews as needed.

REVIEW OF BOARD POLICY COMMITTEE ROUTING

Regent Rosha invited Executive Director Steeves to review Board Policy Committee Routing, as detailed in the docket.

Steeves explained that the new committee structure presents an opportunity to examine and give feedback on the process for routing policies through the Board. He explained that each Board policy is assigned to a committee based on subject matter.

In response to a question from Regent Anderson, Steeves noted that the Office of the Board of Regents (OBR) monitors items brought forward to the Board to ensure compliance with established policies. He explained that because the Board sets its own policies, there is no penalty for going against policy if the majority of the Board is in agreement.

Anderson asked if OBR would notify the Board if it were voting on something not aligned with Board policies. Rosha responded that anyone could flag these types of inconsistencies.

Regent Beeson offered that while policy exceptions are rare, they are worth noting when they do happen.

Rosha noted that although policies are routed by subject matter to certain committees, some policies could be re-routed to the Governance and Policy Committee to help balance committee workloads.

OVERVIEW OF BYLAWS OF THE BOARD OF REGENTS

Regent Rosha invited Executive Director Steeves to provide an overview of the Bylaws of the Board of Regents (Bylaws), as detailed in the docket.

Steeves shared that the Bylaws have not been comprehensively reviewed since 2001, which is when they were last amended. He gave an overview of the various topics covered by the articles in the Bylaws, explaining that the committee intends to include review of Bylaws in its workplan for the coming year.

Regent Johnson noted that when five or more Board members call for a special meeting, the current language allows that meeting to conclude at any point. He suggested specifying that the Board must consider the issue before them before adjourning.

Rosha offered that the Bylaws do not specify a time period in which a special meeting must take place after the Chair calls for the meeting, and suggested adding guidelines to prevent undue delays.

Regent Anderson commented that he considers the Bylaws to be a guide for keeping the Board focused on a long-term perspective. Rosha agreed, Regent Beeson concurred with Regents Anderson and Rosha, offering his view that updates will likely be more technical in nature.

Rosha noted that he anticipates discussion of the ways Board members may participate in meetings, such as by phone, email, or other technology.

Regent McMillan invited Joseph Konstan, Chair of the Faculty Consultative Committee, to present the report of the Faculty Consultative Committee, as detailed in the docket.

Konstan profiled the work and accomplishments of several faculty members. He encouraged

Regent Beeson suggested that the financial aid discussion should be at the Board level, noting the longstanding Board policy to distribute financial aid beyond Pell and state grants. Sviggum, McMillan and Rosha agreed that the topic is a Board discussion.

Regent Omari noted that the cost of operations for higher education is not decreasing, and therefore the University must look for other funding sources.

Regent Rosha noted the changes in types of funding provided by the state that challenge the University's financial aid decisions. He asked the Board to consider that a higher tuition model may signal to the legislature that the University is comfortable with funding operations using student debt and does not need further support.

Regent Powell expressed appreciation for the focus on digital distribution, and asked for more details on it and other areas of priority moving forward. He asked how decisions will be made at the school and department level for funding area priorities. Hanson responded that inefficient elements of infrastructure are being addressed. She suggested that the Board may benefit from seeing examples of proposals from the faculty, and the process they go through for approvals.

OVERVIEW OF INSTITUTIONAL RISK PROFILE & RELATED MITIGATION PLANS

Regent McMillan invited Provost Hanson and Senior Vice President Burnett to present an overview of the institutional risk profile and related mitigation plans, as detailed in the docket.

Hanson described the process of identifying institutional risks with the Audit & Compliance Committee, and gave an overview of each of the 21 institutional risk categories identified by the administration. Burnett detailed the mitigation plans for two of the categories: employee demographics/succession planning and facilities: maintenance, scope, and alignment.

Regent Anderson observed that the University has lower operating margins than its peers. He expressed concern that this may cause interest rates to increase, which will in turn cost the University more money. He noted the trend in recent years for government funding to shift away from funding universities directly, and toward supporting individuals. Burnett responded that the University's conservative budget takes into account the risk of rising interest rates.

Regent Cohen thanked Chief Auditor Klatt and the senior leadership team for their work in this area.

Regent Simonson asked about the University's view on adjunct professors compared to full-time professors, and whether the University is competitive with its peers regarding retention efforts such as salaries and bonuses. Hanson noted that the University does have adjunct professors across the campuses. She referenced an increasing disparity between salaries at the University and private schools, but emphasized they are similar to other public institutions.

In response to a question from Regent Omari, Burnett reported that the risk categories will be addressed in the future by the committee they are assigned to.
